Our sincere and earnest friend
we, the class of nineteen twenty-five, respectfully dedicate this book.

FOREWORD

To the Trustees, Officers, Faculty, Alumni, and to the Students and their friends:

WE, the Editors of the Babsonian greet you. For you we have earnestly compiled this annual, the record of a year never to be forgotten.

For this volume we do not claim literary merit and artistic distinction. We have attempted only to set down a few "high lights" as a faithful record of the joys and woes and the work and play of the class of 1925.

Precedents which have been passed down to us through the annuals of former years — honored customs and traditions we have upheld. In presenting the 1925 Babsonian it is our sincere hope that it will fill its place among the growing rank of the permanent records of Babson Institute.

If this book serves as a happy reminder of student activities in the days spent at Babson Institute, our hope will be realized and we shall be contented in the knowledge that our work has been well done.

ROGER W. BABSON
Founder of Babson Institute

Mr. Babson's Message to The Graduates of 1925

YOU are living in a day when real success in business is a mutual affair. Unless you have helped the other fellow to be a success you have missed the most worth-while satisfaction of life. If you want a lasting success, your customers, your employees, your associates should all be better off because of what you have accomplished in your business life. It is not enough that you succeed in making money for your own enjoyment. You must render some service that is a fair equivalent for the money you have received. The gambler may get rich by a lucky turn, but he hasn't earned anything and his counterfeit of success will perish as quickly as it came. Forget about profits and keep your eye on service. Do something for somebody that is worth-while and remuneration will come in proportion to the quality and value of the service you render.

The Graduates of 1925

GOD never made two individuals just alike. Don't try to be just like the other fellow. Be yourself.

God has given you a wonderful endowment all your own. It is your business to use it. Find out what you can do and do it with all your might.

God has a place for you in life. But you must find it. Whether it be large or small, glorious or inconspicuous, unusual or commonplace, you will be happy if you find it and fill it and miserable if you miss it or neglect it.

Remember:—What we are is God's gift to us. What we make of ourselves is our gift to God.

—George W. Coleman.

THE SECRETARIES

Mildred D. Green
Frances E. Burgess

Lillian M. Perkins
Katherine T. Brophy

Marion Wing
Gladys F. Gove

THERE is no other single group of workers in the Institute more willing to help and to advise the students than the secretaries. To them we owe our deepest gratitude. ¶ To each of you, we, the students of 1924-1925, express our sincere appreciation for your unselfish and whole-hearted co-operation.

AD INFINITUM

The year is drawing to a close,
 Soon we will have to bid farewell
 To all the students, e'en those
 We like. For some do dwell
 Afar — some few quite near.
 'Tis hard to say the word,
 Yet we do say it every year.
 Some few we had preferred
 That they stayed on —
 And yet we would not stay
 Their progress. They'll be gone
 Another month. Then for a day
 We all will grieve. The empty places
 Moan them but a little while
 Until another group, new faces
 And attractions us beguile.

—Lillian M. Perkins

HISTORY OF BABSON INSTITUTE

BABSON INSTITUTE was founded by Mr. Babson in 1919 to train young men in the fundamentals of business leadership. His idea was to give them a thorough understanding of the periodical fluctuations to which business is subject, with the idea of reducing or preventing in the future these times of over-expansion and depression and the resulting evil consequences to business and to individuals.

In the fall of 1919 the school opened with about twenty-five students instead of the ten or fifteen expected. The house at 31 Abbott Road, formerly the home of Mr. and Mrs. Babson, was used as the school building that year. After the Babson Statistical Organization moved into its present quarters, the Institute occupied the Organization's old building on Washington Street, since made into an apartment house.

During the first two years of the Institute Mr. Babson was President, and in the fall of 1921, with the incorporation of the Institute under the educational laws, he became Chairman of the Board of Trustees, and Mr. Coleman came to the Institute as President. Mr. Fittz has been a member of the faculty since the very beginning, and Mr. Millea since January, 1920. Mr. Linnekin was made Vice-President in the spring of 1920. Mr. Matthews joined the faculty in the summer of 1920, and Mr. Hollister came to the Institute in the spring of 1921, beginning the teaching of Accounting the following September. The work of the Advanced Department was inaugurated under Dr.

Hoffman in the spring of 1922. The following spring the first students began work with him.

While the school was located on Washington Street, Mr. Babson was gradually acquiring for the Institute the large tract of land partly in Wellesley and partly in Needham which comprises the present campus.

The Administration Building was completed and occupied in the spring of 1923. The Richard Knight Auditorium, given by Mrs. Babson, was finished in time for the 1923 Babson Conference. The Lyon Building was ready for occupancy when classes began in September, 1923. Mr. Henderson and Mr. Thurlow joined the faculty then, and the Institute opened with the largest number of students in its history. The Bryant Building was ready for Dr. Hoffman in December, 1923. The Peavey Gymnasium was finished in time to serve as a dining-room for the 1924 Babson Conference.

The Park Club House, owned by the Babson Park Company, opened in September, and the majority of the students took advantage of this opportunity to live on the campus. The Coleman Map Building was completed in March, 1925, and the steel framework of the map itself was finished in May, but at least two years will be necessary to make the map under the direction of Mr. George Carroll Curtis. In addition to the buildings owned by the Institute, the Babson Park Company has built an office building, a post-office, a store and a garage and these facilities are available to students.

SECOND YEAR STUDENTS

Advanced Research Department

Charles W. Ross, III   Richard S. Page   E. Kenan Price

Upon this book may chance to look some future financier
Who hopes to hold fat bags of gold and railroads far and near;
Or run a bank whose surplus rank would make a Morgan sore,
And work each man for all he can, to make a billion more;
Or grab a dime each tap or time, as five-cent Woolworth did,
Until there'll rise unto the skies the wealth of Captain Kid;
Or own the mines that pay for wines, and yachts upon the sea,
And soft guitars, and movie stars to perch upon each knee;
Or own more stock than he can hoek by working all the day,
And have more cash than he can hash until his hair is gray.
But listen, bo! I'm sure you know that when at last you're there,
With double chin and flabby fin, a full-fed billionaire,
With mighty paunch and shaking haunch, and rings beneath each eye,
With gout and age upon each page, you'll see just why
These happy days in students' ways, are rich, oh, richer still,
Than all that lies beyond surmise atop of life's great hill;
And so, my boy, we wish you joy; keep young as you can be;
And may this book help you to look forever twenty-three!

—The Editor.

A GAME without a Name!

IN the year 1925, a battle took place in Peavey Hall. The flying line of the faculty battled bravely against the hoop men of the executive division of the "B. I."

Dr. Coleman was on the jump as center. He managed his team like a "Vet," but the fault was in the RAW material. George was indeed the star, in fact he was an orbit. Cap played a good game, and led his men to a moral victory.

"Stub" Millea the right guard was on his feet most of the time. While a good many balls went over his head, we can't blame him for his "short"-comings. Only once Stub didn't get out of the way, and, as a consequence, he sustained a broken ankle. Stub was an asset to the team as a whole.

Henderson played left guard. While "Adolphus" didn't quite get on to the psychology of the game, he tried hard. He was as playful as a calf running around the "barnyard" on a spring morn. As a basket-ball player—well!

Harold Thurlow held the berth of right forward; he didn't get any marks. He was the messenger to Garcia, but he didn't deliver the goods. Of the five hoopmen, he came the closest to making a basket.

Gus Linnekin and Red Hollister were the stars for the "executives." "Steam-roller" Gus and Red ran up a score of 58 the first half.

In the second half, "Andy" Andress and Capt. Andrews were the star substitutes. By the teamwork of a complete new lineup for the faculty team, "Steam-roller" Gus and Red were held down to four points.

While the final score was 62 to 3, the score doesn't tell the story. The faculty "Won" a moral victory.

“IN COMES THE TIDE”

or

“Driftwood Gathered Along the Shores in a Spinster’s Life”

---

*As Delivered at Men’s Club, Wellesley Hills
One Appearance Only - That Was Enough*

TO the strains of Lohengrin’s Wedding March—“Susan Smithers” stealthily steps to the speaker’s stand and with the winning smile of a blushing bride, says:

“That reminds me of when I was a Society bud and a flower girl. Do you know I believe in a long engagement—it makes marriage shorter.”

“Friends, Romans, Countrymen, Lend me your shears, while I cut loose and expostulate on the subject of the ‘Down-trodden Sex,’ or ‘Look What the Tide Brought In.’

“In the first place every woman has three inalienable rights—Life—Liberty—and the pursuit of husbands—I mean one husband. Lots of women are clamoring for equal rights.

“What’s the reason?”

“They want to dress like men and stay out nights.

“What’s the reason?”

“That reminds me of what one of our great advocates of women’s rights said. She said:—Well, I don’t remember what she said, but it fits the case.

“I attended a woman’s suffrage party last night. There was one poor little man there. They called on him for a toast. He responded. He said: ‘Here’s to lovely woman; once our superior, now our equal.’

“Woman is advancing; there’s no getting around that fact. There are women lawyers, women undertakers and women doctors. The other day I saw a tramp go up to a doctor’s house and ring the bell. A lady came to the door and the tramp said: ‘Madam, will you give me a pair of the doctor’s old pants?’ The woman said: ‘Sir, I am the doctor.’

“But I’ll tell you the reason, and that with dispatch,

Why the manners of men women never will snatch;

Because she must stop when she tries lighting a match—

“And that’s the reason!”

“We women have stood up for our rights and have stood up in street cars long enough. Now the time has come to sit down on the men. Of course, you must be careful what men you sit on.

“Women should be allowed to vote and go to Congress. What do men do when they go to Congress? I’ll tell you what they do. They play poker and get drunk. Then to get even they put a tax on everything. Incomes are taxed to the roof and carpets are taxed to the floor. They’ve got most everything taxed now, and they’re going to put a tax on bachelors. Well, the tax on bachelors is all right. It’s a luxury to be a bachelor, and all luxuries ought to be taxed.

“A young man will fall in love with a girl.

“What’s the reason?”

“And his head and his heart will be set in a whirl.

“What’s the reason?”

"Love! That's the reason.

"I am often asked to give my definition of love. What is love? Love, dear brothers and sisters, is nothing more nor less than a rush of the hand to the pocketbook in ice cream season. And love is the insane desire on the part of a young man to be a woman's meal ticket for life.

"Love is the cherry in our cocktail of happiness, courtship is the 'jag' and marriage is the eye opener. There's no use talking, love's young dream is usually marriage's old nightmare. Love is a delicate subject to handle. A lover has to handle his sweetheart with kid gloves—but after marriage, with boxing gloves.

"A friend tells me that women have no consistency. His wife chased him out of his house with a rolling pin and then she cried all day because he left home without kissing her good-bye.

"I asked a friend the other day how he liked the modern school of love. He said: 'Well, I like everything but the marriage class. In that class the lessons are too hard and you don't get a vacation.' Lastly, love is like smallpox; you only get it once and when you get it, it leaves its mark forever. But—

"Why will a man buy a girl presents so nice? So that she will marry him and be his wife, Because then he'll make her work for him the rest of her life.

"That's the reason!

"What's the reason why I'm in love.

"I haven't any reason—that's why I'm in love.

"Women should strive to maintain an even temper. That reminds me of several married men who, after finishing a lobster supper, were discussing the shortcomings of their wives.

"One man, whose domestic difficulties were well-known, contributed not a word to the conversation. At last some one asked him what he had to say on the subject. 'My wife,' said he, 'has the most even temper in the world. She's mad all the time.'

"That's the reason!

"Still girls are not half so bad as they are painted. Some one asked me if I believed in clubs for women. I said, 'Of course I do—clubs, sand bags, flat irons, and any old thing.'

"But to come back to the man. I know a man who didn't speak to his wife for a whole year. He didn't want to interrupt her.

"That's the reason!

"The other day I was walking along the street and I saw a man lying in the gutter, in a beastly state of intoxication. I think he was Andy Beardsley. Lying along side of him was a pig. I stopped and said: 'There it is! The old, old story. You can always tell a man by the company he keeps,' and the pig got up and walked away.

"The other night our neighbor's husband came home. He tried to open the door but he couldn't. He called for help and his wife raised the second story window.

"'Is this Mrs. Smith?' he asked. She called back:

"'Yes, this is Mrs. Smith.'

"'Is it Mrs. John Smith?'

"'Yes, Mrs. John Smith.'

"'Well, we have brought Smith home.'

"'All right, put him in the front vestibule and I'll come down and get him.'

"And what do you suppose Smith said? He said: 'We don't know which is Smith.'

"Now this shows that there's a reason why women sit up for their husbands. It's so that they can later sit down on them.

"That's the reason!

"Then after she sits down on him for coming home drunk, she asks him, 'Where have you been, and why do you stay out so late?' He'll defend himself by saying: 'My dear (hic), I've been (hic) with a (hic) sick friend.'

"That's the reason!

"I started out as an advocate for women's rights. But now I'm going in for women's lefts. What do I mean, women's lefts? I mean widowers. Yes, I'd take a widower. My ideal would be a man who is strong—a silent man—one full of grit, and one able to bear the heat and burden of the day without flinching—one who will not hear a word said about me, and who will not utter an unkind word himself.

"Can anyone recommend a deaf and dumb coal heaver?

"I don't need protection, I'm not afraid and I believe there must be worse creatures than men—but I don't know where. Some girls are so afraid that they look under the bed hoping there isn't a man hiding there.

"I look under the bed hoping that there is a man in hiding there.

"That's the difference!

"That's the difference!

"That's the difference!"

Made Famous By JOHN - THOMAS BAND

May Be Sung When, As and If Desired--
With or Without Music

There was a young lady named Carol
Who was round and fat like a barrel.
(This really ain't true
But it just had to do,
'Twas the only word rhyming with Carol.)

There was a young lady named Kate
Who with all the young boys made a date.
One night very late
Found her Dad at the gate.
Oh, the fate that for Kate did await!
Hot Dog!

There was a young lady named Perk
And she was surely a flirt,
With all the young boys
She made a loud noise,
But the man that she picked was a Turk!

There was a young lady named Gladys.
The tale about her, oh, so sad is.
What she said in her sleep
We dare not repeat
For we cannot find out who the lad is.

There was a young lady named Mim
And she was just awfully slim.
But strange to relate
She ate and she ate
And still poor Mim remained slin.

There was a young lady named Frances
Who just loved going to dances,
With a man named Jim.
She just adored him,
Which is why little Frances loved dances.

There was a young lady, Miss Hayward
And she was really quite wayward.
She stood on her neck
Till her hair was a wreck,
This terribly wayward Miss Hayward.

There was a young lady named Marion,
And, oh, how she did carryon.
She somersaults turned,
Notoriety earned.
People cried: "How you carryon, Marion!"

There's also a lady named White,
Who was out on a picnic one night;
Saw a black and white stone,
And gave a loud groan,
Tho't the stone was a skunk, poor Miss White!

Ashton: "Willson, have you read McDougall?"

Willson: "No."

Ashton: "Have you read Hollingsworth?"

Willson: "No."

Ashton: "Well, what have you read?"

Willson: "I have red flannels at home."

Keenan (in the Hospital): "Are you a trained nurse?"

Nurse: "Yes, I am."

Keenan: "Well, let's see some of your tricks."

Mrs. Reals: "Officer, Davis and Ward are shooting craps upstairs."

Dave Gallery: "Madame, what do you think I am, a game warden?"

Bugher: "If I should kiss you would you scream for help?"

She: "I certainly should—if you required any."

Floor Walker: "Are you looking for any particular girl?"

Thomas: "We-ll, not too particular."

Woodcock: "Did you give up anything for lent this year?"

Rickey: "Sure! All my New Year's resolutions."

Dr. Coleman: "Are you fond of autos?"

Mr. Hollister: "I certainly must be. You should have seen the truck I ate at the cafeteria."

Cap. Andrews: "My wife kisses me every time I come home."

Liddle: "Affection?"

Cap. Andrews: "No, investigation."

Freeman: "Why don't you allow your wife to keep ducks?"

Dr. Wing: "The remarks they make are too personal."

Agnes: "Why did you take your hands off the wheel?"

Selover: "I wanted to see if I had a flat tire."

Agnes: "Oh, you mean thing."

Mr. Henderson: "Are you the man who cut my hair last time?"

Barber: "I can't be, sir, I've only been here a year."

Taxman: "Ain't it Hell?"

Card: "What?"

Taxman: "The place we're going."

Dr. Coleman: "Honesty is the best policy."

Pomeroy (after three months course with Mr. Fittz): "By golly, you're wrong. I can prove that 'straight life' is the best policy."

Miss Gove: "I've decided to give up Stenography."

Mr. Millea: "No, why?"

Miss Gove: "I can't bear having any man dictate to me."

Alice: "I don't think I'll go swimming with you any more?"

Eddie: "Why not?"

Alice: "You do nothing but hug the bank."

Mr. Millea: "I was over to O. & J.'s again yesterday."

Savels: "You're going to make quite a town out of Worcester, aren't you?"

Mr. Millea: "Not unless Worcester will co-operate with me."

Mr. Matthews: "How much do you get on a gallon?"

Mr. Fittz: "It depends on what's in the gallon."

ANCIENT HISTORY

Ward: "Just think, Willson, the ruins of Athens are over 2,000 years old."

Willson: "What are you talking about, it's only 1925?"

Mr. Matthews: "Why was that period of the cycle between 500 A. D. and 1200 A. D., known as the Dark age?"

Freeman: "Because those were the days of knights."

Queenie: "Have you ever played the game of love?"

Marks: "Just once, but then I needed a shave and was disqualified for unnecessary roughness."

Mr. Henderson: "Did you say she dances like a zephyr?"

John: "Not zephyr—heifer."

Mr. Millea (speaking of one's stature): "Now we know why they grow so big in California. They have plenty of room to grow in."

Selover: "Where were you brought up—Rhode Island?"

Father: "You'll have to stop running around with that girl. She's too wild for you, son."

Rickey: "She isn't wild, Father. She makes a wonderful pet."

Dad: "Son, you should be very proud of our family tree."

????? "Well, I don't know, it's pretty shady."

Student: "You'll make somebody a good wife."

Miss Secretary: "Well, I hope to goodness some one finds it out."

SOME CLEAN ONES

Pond: "I had a terrible shock last night. I lost my ring in the bath tub."

Kleiser: "That's nothing -- I leave a ring in the tub every night."

Newcomer: "I should like a large front room with bath."

Mr. Burt: "Have you a reservation?"

Newcomer: "What do you think I am, an Indian?"

Taxman: "Hello! Is this the weather bureau? How about that shower tonight?"

Weather Bureau: "Don't ask us. If you need one, take it."

Hughes: "Do you mean to tell me that clock will run eight days without winding?"

Gourd: "Yes."

Hughes: "Well, then, how long will it run if you wind it?"

PLEASE PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

THE advertisers in this book have given the students of Babson Institute excellent service throughout the year and have extended many favors that were greatly appreciated. They have helped make possible the publication of this book and we, the Class of 1925, urge that future classes patronize the advertisers who have so generously co-operated with us.

HOLLYWOOD

By - the - Sea

IN little more than three years, Hollywood-by-the-Sea stands magnificent as Florida's new all-year resort city.

Hollywood is as June when the north is held in the grip of winter. Cool sea breezes and low temperature make it delightful in summer.

Hollywood-by-the-Sea has seven miles of Ocean frontage, two miles of cement broad walk, electrically lighted — gigantic building activities on the beach including a $250,000 casino and a $3,000,000 — 500 room hotel.

Great construction work is going on — how lands are being turned into exclusive residential sections. Lakes and lagoons are being dug — all adding to the city's rich beauty.

A $15,000,000 harbor has been begun — the first between New York and the Panama Canal, with a world-famous engineer. The harbor will make Hollywood a great industrial center — a giant aid in the development of the resources of Florida.

Hollywood has modern hotels, its own public utilities, apartments, schools, churches — a golf clubhouse and 18-hole golf links, the finest railroad south of Jacksonville — all done in Spanish architecture, beauty blending with the natural splendor of Southern Florida. Hollywood-by-the-Sea is an ideal place for permanent residence — or for a vacation any time of the year.

Write for literature.
